A CERL US PHYSIOLOGICAL FACT.—A French officer, while making a reconnoissance near Sebastopol, was knocked down by the wind of a cannon ball, and the shock was so severe as to cause a paralysis of his tongue, so that he could neither move it nor speak. Obtaining leave of absence, he returned to Marseilles, and placed himself under electrical treatment. After a few shocks he could move his tongue with more facility, and at length, after an unusually powerful shock, his speech was restored, and he was obeyed." tongue with more facility, and at length, after an unusually powerful shock, his speech was restored, and he was

OUTRAGEOUS BEHAVIOR OF THE INDIANS IN UTAH .- The following is an extract of a private letter from Utah Territory:

"I am down here, about 200 miles from Sait Lake City, with a party of six men, partly as an escort to the judges of the supreme court, and also to have a talk with Walker, the chief of the Utahs. Two Indians were recently tried by the court and hung for the murder of some children, and considerable apprehension was felt lest the tribes should take revenge upon the persons of the judges. We have seen a great deal of the different tribes of Utes, and thought when we started we might possibly have a little fighting, but it turned out otherwise, and our relations with the Indians proved to be perfectly peaceful and friendly.

with the Indians proved to be perfectly peaceful and friendly.

"I have never before appreciated the troubles of frontier life. All the towns south of the Salt Lake City are completely overrun with Indians, who keep the settlers entirely under their thumbs. They walk into a house, demand what they want, and, if refused, draw an arrow on the females, and frighten them into submission. They go into the fields, steal the wheat, and take it to the miller; when the grist is ground, they fight with the miller if he requires his toll. The people make them presents continually, and try to conciliate them in every way, and the Utes return the favors by calling them 'squaws' and 'cowards,' and shooting them whenever it suits their convenience to do so."

A DUELLIST CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER AT NEW OR LEANS.—We copy the following from the New Orleans Delta of the 19th instant:

couned was defended by Mr. Soulé, when it was proved that the duel was characterized by circumstances of great brustility, the accused deliberately walking up to his unarmed antigonist and firing into his bosom. Yet he was acquitted. Now, the duel participated in by the party convicted yesterday was marked by an unusual degree of chivalry and fair play. It was fought with knives; the parties were equal in physical power; and when one objected to the knife of the other, the latter offered and actually did exchange knives, and with the weapon of his antagonist slew him. The surviving party was indicted for manslaughter, and, after a vigorous defence, was convicted by a jury in which there were several Creoles. This conviction, which reflects high credit upon the energy and perseverance of Attorney General Morse and District Attorney Tappan, marks a new era in the sentiments and habits of our people. Henceforth, in addition to the civil disqualifications, persons who undertake to settle their quarrels by a resort to the duello will be exposed to prosecution and conviction in our courts for an offence which subjects the party to an infamous punishment."

CASE.—The following additional facts respecting the recent robbery on board the cars of the New York Central railroad we find in the Rochester Democrat:

On Friday last a young woman took the cars for the West at a station a short distance beyond Utica. Her baggage was checked for Buffalo. After proceeding a short distance upon the journey, a woman who was a fellow-passenger, with an affected desire to relieve the loneliness of the young lady, took a seat with her, and became very sociable. She was, in fact, quite attentive, and among other marks of familiarity, offered her protégé her bottle of smelling salts, which was uccepted and used. Soon after inhaling the pungent odor of the vinaigrette, she became powerfully affected by the influence of some subtle soporific agent which it contained, and fell asleep. She remained in this unconscious condition for some time, and on recovering from her stupor discovered that she had been robbed of her purse, baggage-checks, &c.

"On arriving at the Clyde station, she made known the facts in to the conductor, and the railroad men made up a sufficient sum to take her on to her destination. This circumstance he develops a new and dangerous scheme for the robbery of unsuspecting persons on the railway trains. Doubless the female adept had caused her victim to inhale the vapor of chloroform, and thus had her fully in her power while she perpetrated the robbery. If they carry their operations to the extent of traing baggage also, it is a still more serious business. Let every one be quitious about encouraging the approaches of plausible strangers on the cars." road we find in the Rochester Democrat :

"Ship Young Brander, Hamilton, at Liverpool, of and from New Orleans, which was in contact with the iron nerw steamer Pactoius, off Tuskar, was struck in the force channels, cutting the ship from the water up to five planks on deck; carried away the mizzen-topmast, backstay, langard, and main brace. Eight timbers were store in, and all the thick work and water way between decks, and from 40 to 50 knees, were broken, starting almost every butt in the ship. The iron cutwater of the steamer, weighing about two tons, was driven clean through the side of the ship till it reached the cargo of cotton bales when it broke, and remained hanging to the reasel after the colision. It is said to have been one of the most severe colisions that ever occurred, as the steamer was going 13 knots when she struck the ship. Capt Hamilton had a good light on the howsprit end, and another over the port.

nation, Mr. Bates says:

"My pecuniary circumstances, though such as to enable me to feel comfortable and independent, are not such as to warrant me in abandoning my private pursuits, and devoting all my time and energies to the public service. When I was young my ambition was an active principle, and would have led me to acrifice much of time and comfort for the privilege of figuring in the high places of public life. But I was long ago cured of that intellectual malady, (so near akin to patriotism,) and, being once so thoroughly beaten as to make me content with defeat, I fortunately lost the desire for public station, along with the power to obtain it; and ever since my purpose has been settled never again to exhaust my energies and waste my better feelings in toilsome efforts (and perhaps vain and fruitless efforts) to climb the elliptery heights of politics. Besides, my opinious on most public subjects are formed and settled, my habits are retired and domestic, and all my sources of happiness are at home."

The way to make it up is to bake it a little longer than buckwheat, mix the dough with a little soda, and you will have a more delightful cake than can be made from buckwheat it is said that Solon Robinson is dramatizing Parton's "Life of Horace Greeley" for Wallack's theatre, New York.

FATALLY INJURIOUS EFFRCTS FROM THE USE OF SALERATUS—JOR. W. A. Alcott furnishes to the New York Tribune's very interesting paper on the effects of saleratus, from which we extract the following:

the Boston Post:

"Sreet dialogue.—Flat meeting Sharp.

"Flat.—Can you tell me how it is that when people fail now-a-days 'they will, undoubtedly, pay all their debts, and have a handsome surplus,' and yet the creditors rarely get over fifty cents? What becomes of the money?

"Sharp.—Don't know; (aside,) I paid all my liabilities and had a handsome surplus with twenty-five cents on a dollar.

and had a handsome surplus with twelty-live cents on a dollar.

"Plat.—Well, how is it that when Gammon & Snap fail, Gammon, Snap, & Co. continue business, and are to be sustained?

"Sharp,—Don't know. When friend Street burst up, he was asked a similar question. He answered that 'it was his commission business that had stopped, but that the gin and watches seent on."

"Flat.—Psha?"

AN HONORASER MERCHANT.—A gentleman (says the Albany Register) who was four or five years ago extensively engaged in business in this city, failed for about $150,000. His creditors unanimously agreed to compound with him for fifty cents on a dollar, which they realized. He afterwards went to California and got into a profitable business, and since that time has remitted to his creditors $00,000 of the $75,000 he owed them. He will, no doubt, soon pay the $15,000 now due them, and then be "all right" again.

A meamer in treurals.—We copy the following from a late number of the Raleigh (North Carolina) Age:

"A man who was once a resident of Raleigh, and who is quite extensively known on account of other species of duplicity and fraud, was in Washington city last summer and fall, living in the finest style, driving the most elegant establishment of which the city could boast, and otherwise cutting a great swell. In the mean time an acquaintance was formed with a lovely young lady from New York, and their intimacy finally ripened into courtship, and on the 19th of October last they were married in New York.

"Thus far matters had gone on very smoothly, until recently some suspicious circumstances gave rise to inquiries being made of one of our citizens as to his character, &c., when lo! the crushing, blasting truth was made known that he had a lawful wife and children in this city, whom he had deserted and basely betrayed and scandalized. These facts being received, the base deceiver was arrested and is now lodged in Delaware county jail, New York, awaiting his trial upon the charge of bigamy; and irrefutable testimony has been and will be collected and forwarded, proving his first marriage in this city several syears ago."

Stockholm, Sweden, December 15, we learn that Madame Jenny Lind Goldschmidt was in that city attending to her property. She was unaccompanied by her husband, the laws of Sweden forbidding the presence of a Jew. The correspondent adds that Jenny had so changed in appear-ance, and grown so old in looks, that her oldest and most intimate friends did not recognise her.

To see them handle their drum-sticks in this outfit was a natural curiosity. This winter the still-like supporters mysteriously disappear, pantaloons are invisible, and coats bid fair to rival ladies' skirts in the sublime art of street-sweeping."

per tells the following story:

"A man applied for lodgings at one of the station-houses a few nights ago, and told a pitiable story of his sufferings and destitution. He was, of course, given a place to sleep. Two nights after he applied again, and exhibited sixteen cents as the total amount of his assets, but on searching him, the lieutenant found $80 in gold and about $50 worth of jewelry, which he had in a small box. The only object he had in applying for lodgings was to save the small sum that would be charged him at a public house."

steamer, warning her tokeep off. It would cost from £3,000 to £4,000 to put the ship in as good order as before the collision, and the captain had sued the steamer for damages. The same steamer was afterwarfs in contact with a barque, and had to put into Liverpool for repairs. Captain Hamilton writes: 'Great credit is due my first officer. Mr. Sparrow, and the carpenter, for their perseverance over the ship's side in the night, in getting canvas and battens over the holes; also, to the other officers and crew in getting sail off the ship. Every order given was promptly obeyed."

Takking annshely.—The whig members of the Missouri legislature tendered the nomination for United States senator to Hon. Mr. Bates, of St. Louis. In his letter of declination, Mr. Bates says:

which we extract the following:

"In the year 1835 an indigent female, who was desirous of trying to earn an housest livelihood for herself and her family by keeping boarders, rented a house in Williamstown, and took about fifteen boarders. They were chiefly, if not wholly, young men who were attending the college at that place.

"The housekeeper was ignorant of the fashionable modes of cookery, though she knew that rich food was generally preferred. She had heard of saleratus, and that by many cooks it was freely used. Accordingly, she procured a quantity and freely used it. The warm biscuits were so full of it as not only to give them a yellow or burnt appearance, but also to render them bitter or nauseous to the taste. Many other articles were filled with it in like manner. In endeavoring to make hight puddings, however, she used so much of the article, it was said, as to render them as heavy, almost so, as lead. The students called these puddings by the name of 'specific gravity,' so that whenever they wished for a slice they would ask to be helped to some of the 'specific gravity,'

"After the lapse of a few months a disease broke out among these students—so severe that many believed it to be contagious. Of the whole number, thirteen were confined for a long time, and the fourteenth was slightly affected for a few days. The house became known by the name of the pest-house. Two of the patients died; another barely escaped death; and eleven finally recovered."

"It seems the porter of a banking institution in the eighth ward was intrusted with a package of city money, containing the sum of twenty-nine hundred dollars, by the officers and directors for payment of their taxes, to Mr. Harvey Hart, the receiver of taxes. The porter at once proceeded to the tax office, and while getting his bills examined and passed by the first clerk some of the expert light-fingered gentry with which our city is swarming managed to abstract the package from the porter's coat pocket without being detected. The cash, unfortunately, was made up of small bills, rendering it exceedingly difficult to identify them."

A MARRIED YOUTH OF SIXTEEN.—On Sunday afternoon (says the Philadelphia Bulletin) a boy named Lewis Mount, sixteen years of age, was arrested for drunkenness. The same boy has been before Alderman Izard on other occasions, for throwing stones in the streets, &c., and has been hitherto discharged with a reprimand. Yesterday the alderman sent the boy to the House of Refuge, thinking the discipline of that institution would prove of advantage to him. After the committal, a girl of fifteen called at the office of the magistrate and claimed Mount as her husband, alleging that she was married to him eight months since by Father Lane. The alderman referred the venerable matron to the managers of the Refuge.

A mile wister—The present season is so mild in Paris that the public gardens of that city are blooming with handlance of roses and other flowers.

The Crar of Russia had unconditionally accepted the four guarantees, but his sincerity was doubted.

The Sardinian government had joined the western powers.

The Eastern question had assumed a new and important phase. The Crar had not only accepted the four points of guarantee, but also the interpretation of the three powers, explained by England, France, and Austria; but no armistice had been granted, and hostilities, therefore, continued unabated. It is yet doubtful whether Russia's acceptance is unconditional or acceptance with important arminations.

The immediate effect of this important intelligence on the London money market was to raise consols two per cent.; but shortly afterwards the market fell off.

The Prussian government has claimed the privilege of taking a share in the negotiations with Russia, but declines, for the present, to increase the army.
